Proficiency Courses for Post-Baccalaureate Students

Students without a design background enrolled in the Post-Baccalaureate MLA program are required to undertake basic proficiency courses to ensure they have the knowledge and skills in history and theory, design, construction, planting design, and professional practice. The first semester of the three year-program is devoted to development of these skills which continues in the second semester with their application. The required basic proficiency courses will vary with each individual, from none for a student with an accredited BLA degree to more than 55 credits for a student with no design background. Possible required proficiency courses are:
